

American Avocet

The American Avocet is a striking shorebird with long blue-gray legs and an elegant, upturned bill. Its wings are boldly patterned in black and white, while its head and neck change from a warm cinnamon color during breeding season to grayish-white in winter.

This unique combination of colors and patterns makes the American Avocet easily recognizable.

See colors and learn more

