

Magpie / Mag-PI

The Black-billed Magpie is a species in the corvid family that lives in western parts of North America. They have a shiny black plumage with white shoulder, belly, and primary feathers. Feathers on the wings and tail have an iridescent green sheen.

The Eurasian Magpie, Pica pica, is closely related to its North America cousin. Some taxonomies even consider the two to be the same species. Alternate names include Common Magpie and European Magpie.

See colors and learn more

