

Nature's Clean Up Crew

Vultures play an important role in keeping our environment clean and free of disease. When vultures consume carrion (dead animals), they help to stop diseases spreading from rotting carcasses. Vulture digestive systems are specially adapted for the consumption of carrion. The Rueppell's Vulture shown here is an Endangered species that lives in Africa.

See colors and learn more

